Software field is in general divided into 2 types- project based and product based. Indian IT companies are mostly into Projects.

In project based companies, quantum of work is more but complexity is less because the implementation is for a specific client and focus is on delivery of that project to that client.